READING	Read the story carefully. Then, draw a check mark next to the statements that are true. The Siberian tiger, also known as the Amur tiger, is the largest cat in the world. A male can weigh near 270 kilograms and measure 2 meters long. Their fur is a combination of rusty red, rusty yellow, white and dark brown stripes. However, each tiger has its own stripes design. Their peculiar fur helps them to camouflage in the forest, so they can easily hide. These tigers live mostly in eastern Russia and Northeast China. They are fit to live in cold habitats. Their paws act like snowshoes which keep them from sinking in the snow and allow them to move silently. These creatures have excellent night vision, for they hunt mostly at night. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. On average a Siberian tiger can weigh 220 kilograms. _____ 2.
